

What to Do When a Loved One is Missing:

First Steps for Families:

- Immediately call 911 - there is no waiting period to report.
- When you call 911, let them know the missing person is native and be prepared to provide them with a detailed description of your loved one, including:
 - Name
 - Date of Birth
 - Height
 - Weight
 - Scars/tattoos
 - Tribal affiliation
 - Recent, unfiltered photo
 - Last known location
 - Last seen wearing

Next:

- Keep records of your report, including the report taker, case number, investigator, phone number, and contact information.
- Choose a spokesperson from your family who will communicate any updates in the case.
- Reach out to family and friends to help raise awareness.
- Make a flyer with information about your loved one. A template is available at AGO.Nebraska.gov/MMIP.

Additional Resources:

- If you have additional questions and concerns, you can contact the Liaison for Missing and Murdered Indigenous Persons, Grace Johnson, at the Nebraska Attorney General's Office by emailing AGO.Info.Help@Nebraska.gov. She can connect you with additional resources and assist with law enforcement interactions.
